

COVID NEGLIGENCE

Kim sounds alarm with warning of 'Great Crisis'

BLOOMBERG June 30

NORTH KOREAN LEADER Kim Jong Un said a "grave" situation stemming from quarantine negligence has created a crisis, hinting at Covid risks that could affect his rule after his regime has denied it has had any cases.

There were no details of the nature of the incident in the report from the state's official Korean Central News Agency on Wednesday. Kim said through dereliction of duty, cadres neglected executing important decisions for prolonged national quarantine efforts, "creating a great crisis in ensuring the security of the state and safety of the people", KCNA reported.

"He seriously pointed out that chronic irresponsibility and incompetence of cadres at present bring artificial difficulties to the implementation of the Party's policies and become a major brake doing tremendous harm to the development of the revolutionary work," the report said.

Even though North Korea says it has no cases of the coronavirus — a claim doubted by US and Japanese officials — it has taken drastic quarantine steps that have worsened the regime's economic woes, including closing the border with its biggest trade partner, China. Covid-19 brings a large risk to the impoverished state, whose antiquated medical systems could easily be overwhelmed by an infection wave.

"It would be a bit hasty to make any definitive conclusions based on the KCNA report, given it lacked in detail. But North Korea has been particularly sensitive about the pandemic as it lacks testing kits and medical facilities," said Cheong Seong-chang, director of the Unification Strategy Studies Program at Sejong Institute near Seoul. North Korea sees the virus as a threat to its already struggling economy and Kim's rule, Cheong added.

North Korea's economy, which suffered its worst contraction in decades last year, is on track to barely grow in 2021 as the country struggles with the pandemic, border restrictions with China and international sanctions to punish it for nuclear weapons testing, Fitch Solutions said in April.

Pyeongyang has taken strong action after incidents that could expose the country to the virus.

FTC's revival of Facebook case hinges on monopoly claim

BLOOMBERG June 30

TO REVIVE THEIR landmark lawsuit against Facebook, US antitrust enforcers will need to present stronger evidence to support their argument that the world's biggest social network is a monopoly.

With nearly 180 million monthly users in the US, according to eMarketer estimates, and a suite of products that are among the most widely used online, Facebook's influence and reach may appear beyond question to most.

That wasn't enough for US District Judge James Boasberg in Washington, who on Monday dismissed the Federal Trade Commission's (FTC) complaint accusing Facebook of abusing its dominance.

It was an embarrassing setback for the agency, but not a fatal blow: the judge gave the FTC an opportunity to fix the errors and refile within 30 days. Legal experts say it's a surmountable hurdle.

"There's good reason to believe it has significant market power," Herb Hovenkamp, an antitrust law professor at the University of Pennsylvania, said about Facebook. "This is a case, I think, that once
